He was brought up in France, and one day acquired special powers when playing football with his friends. Having kicked the ball behind a fence, he went to explore and discovered a mysterious chest with a cape, a ball and football boots, which enabled him to fly as well as play superb football. His outfit is inspired by the French flag and the colours of the host country.

The mascot will now start his journey around France and the rest of Europe, making a series of appearances for UEFA and its partners between now and the finals, which kick off on 10 June 2016. His travels will help to ensure that UEFA EURO 2016 is a tournament that is never far from the fans.

Up until now, this boy does not have a name. That is where you come in. Help us to pick a name, choosing from one of the three options below, and your football club could win a visit from the mascot.
